An in vitro system for the study of humoral and cellular immune responses to human alveolar macrophages. The present paper describes a coculture system designed to study in vitro the immune interactions between alveolar macrophages (AM) and alveolar lymphocytes (AL) in the lung. Human AM were isolated from normal bronchoalveolar lavages and cultured in the presence of macrophage colony-stimulating factor and for periods of 1-6 days. The viability of AM, and of lymphocytes in cocultures, was assessed by using the trypan blue exclusion test. Cocultures were conducted for a 1-day period in 96-well U-bottom tissue-culture plates. AM and AL were washed and cocultured in medium containing [3H]thymidine. After 1 day of incubation, the supernatants were removed, the cells were lysed and radioactivity was measured in a gamma-counter. Increasing numbers of AM were found to inhibit the ability of AL to be stimulated by mitogens, antigen or Listeria monocytogenes. AL proliferation to Listeria monocytogenes was only partially
