The following are 10 things you should know about AutoCAD. 1. AutoCAD App and Desktop Versions AutoCAD App and Desktop Versions The AutoCAD App is the version for your mobile device. The desktop version of AutoCAD is available for Windows, macOS, and Linux. AutoCAD App / AutoCAD Desktop AutoCAD App and Desktop Versions One of the most important features of AutoCAD is the ability to create very complex drawings that would require massive manual effort. AutoCAD was designed to make this process very easy and efficient. AutoCAD Desktop App (Release 2020) AutoCAD App and Desktop Versions AutoCAD is capable of creating two kinds of drawings: 2D drawings and 3D drawings. 2D drawings are simple, complex, and fast. 3D drawings are more complex and time consuming. 2D drawings are created in a similar manner to traditional pen and paper drawing. You use the standard pen tool to draw shapes and lines. The drawings are then refined using the standard selection tool to make cuts, fills, and shading. In addition, you can save your drawings as.pdf files,.dwg files, or.dxf files. AutoCAD also supports 3D drawings created with the Orthographic projection. In addition, you can save your drawings as.pdf files,.dwg files, .dxf files, and.stl files. 3D drawings are created using the command line. To start a new drawing, you must select the command line to start a drawing and specify which project type to use. The command line provides the ability to import geometry and create new objects. You can also use the command line to create planes and surfaces. You can specify whether or not the plane or surface should be a reference plane or surface. It is also possible to link multiple drawing files together. 2.2D and 3D Drawing 2.2D and 3D Drawing There are two kinds of drawings in AutoCAD: 2D drawings and 3D drawings. 2D drawings are created using the 2D command line. The 3D command line provides the ability to create 3D drawings. 2D drawings in AutoCAD App 2D drawings in AutoCAD Desktop 3. File Formats File Formats AutoCAD

The aim of this study was to investigate the mortality rate of HIV-positive pregnant women in Dakar, Senegal. The study population comprised all pregnant women with known HIV serology and with at least one visit to the national HIV program between January and June 2009. The medical records of all HIV-positive pregnant women were assessed retrospectively. A total of 784 medical records were identified for review. The mean age was 29.5 ± 6.4 years and 73.5% of the women were illiterate. The rate of mortality was 17.6%. The main causes of death were HIV-related (22.1%), tuberculosis (22.1%), and obstetrical complications (15.2%). Of the women who had died, 32.5% had less than four antenatal care visits, and 40.4% did not know their HIV status before their first antenatal visit. Underreporting of the HIV prevalence rate was observed in this study. The mortality rate was high, as it is in many other sub-Saharan African countries. Improving the HIV counseling and testing services could help to identify HIV-positive women who are most at risk and to start treatment early.Prolonged pregnancy with twin reversed arterial perfusion sequence and premature delivery.
